I really enjoyed this exercise, I felt myself relaxing into my chair and I had lots of thoughts flowing in such a short period of time. I like to brain-dump all my thoughts onto a piece of paper, so this is a great exercise to do after. I have been told that I am quite the overthinker so I have saved this to my YouTube to revisit.

HOPE REPLY

[name] I'm glad you found this exercise helpful. It's great to hear you're going to revisit it.

I am grateful for my nurse today in hospital, who recognised I am having a really tough time and has organised for me to speak to one of their psychologists!

HOPE REPLY

[name] thank you for sharing this. It sounds like you have a great team around you.

Information is unclear and confusing. I feel alone and like no one understands me or my diagnosis, including myself.

HOPE REPLY

[name] Thank you for sharing your feelings. It is so important to have a support network.

The 15 minutes of time I had today by myself, sat in the sun at my parents' fish pond. Just feeling the autumn heat and watching the fish. Just me.

HOPE REPLY

[name] that sounds like a lovely moment of stillness and connection with nature.

I want to publish my PhD as an actual book. IIH kind of stalled that process, but I have tried to start it up again.

HOPE REPLY

[name] I am so pleased to hear that you have started again. I hope you are able to complete your PhD and publish it as a book.

I wanted to learn more and not feel so alone. I've had some very bad days where I have been so annoyed as to why did I get diagnosed with this illness. Seeing people online my age do so much, and I take it as a win if I can get through work and then feel so exhausted in the evenings I don't want to do anything.

I am going to start walking with my 2 pugs, daily, from home, and build up a route and routine. I will aim to do this every other day at least.

HOPE REPLY

[name] this sounds like a great goal. I hope you enjoy it.

My sister is getting married in July. I hope I'm able to assist the photographer with wedding photography on the day as planned. I'm terrified of my vision changing so found this task quite hard to do this week. My biggest hope is to be able to see my daughter continue to grow.
